This is a message from Connecticut Water for customers of Jensen's Beechwood water system in Killingworth

You are receiving this message because you are a customer of the Beechwood water system. A copy of this message is posted at Connecticut Water's website at www.ctwater.com

You no longer have to boil your tap before drinking.

Lab results confirm that water quality was not affected by our system maintenance and upgrade work that was performed on Monday.

We collected water samples after our work was completed and system pressure was restored. The samples were tested in a state certified laboratory and the lab has confirmed that the water is safe to drink.

Again, you may now consume tap water without boiling it first. That means the water can be used for drinking, cooking, food preparation and other purposes where it is consumed without being boiled first. You may notice the taste and smell chlorine in the water because we temporarily added chlorine to the water system to help protect against bacterial contamination.

Connecticut Water appreciates your patience with this project.
